

A Survey of ETS Constituents in Restaurants & Offices in New York City led by on the initiative of Mayor Koch, the restriction of smoking in <sup>certain</sup> public places including restaurants and offices is under consideration by ~~legislation~~ New York City Council presumably to protect non-smokers from being exposed to high concentration of ETS constituents. ~~Quite surprising~~ However this action is being considered without any measurements of the concentration of ETS constituents in these indoor environments.

~~One has the impression that ETS exposures with other sources of the same character should be based on the~~ the ~~problem~~ <sup>problem</sup> as evidenced by the contribution of ETS constituents in ~~indoor~~ these indoor environments. Hence, the investigation was initiated by the Tobacco industry to determine the level of contamination of indoor air in restaurants and offices <sup>with ETS</sup> ~~under~~ ~~which a smoking ban is being considered in~~
