It appears that the "cease and desist" efforts may have captured the attention of the media.

Accordingly, I suggest that we create a simple holding statement, which we can pass out if there are any press inquiries today, which could also be used over the weekend if there are further inquiries. Given this holiday weekend, and since it's likely to be a slow news time, this may get a little unusual traction.

Here's my shot: what do you guys think?
